The Avenue Girl.

Two pretty girls in all the bravery of their summer toggery started to walk down Woodward avenue to see the sights, he seen themselves, and finish up on a wild, delicious soda fountain glass of ginger ale.

"It's my treat today," said No. 1 as she turned her impetuous pocket inside out in the search for a dime.
"Let's make it a Jersey treat—you pay for yours and I'll pay for mine," suggested No. 2.

"I've thought of a scheme," suggested her friend. "The one who makes the most bows shall treat.
Let's count the people we meet who know us, and count the bows we will have to make. That will be fun."

"All right," answered the other, and they resumed their walk.
It was No. 1 who suggested the scheme, and in a few minutes a gentleman passed the young ladies and raised his hat.

No. 2 bowed, but No. 1 looked as unconscious as a girl of marble.
"Why, you know Charlie G—don't you?" asked No. 2.

"Was that Charlie? But he bowed to you," answered No. 1 meekly.
Bow, bow, bow. They passed innumerable acquaintances, but never once did the blond banged head of No. 1 incline itself. Her friend tum-bled to the situation at last.

"You're wrong," she said. "Come in and have a wowsy all round ginger ale, for you've earned it, but you have cut every friend you have in the city."

"Oh, it'll be fun making up," answered No. 1 as she clutched her empty pocket and thanked her wits for getting her out of a scrape.—Detroit Free Press.

Caught the Wrong Indian.

Cae of our merchant princes had a peculiar and laughable experience while ago which will bear publicity.
It must be understood that the gentleman in question employs a large number of boys, who are compelled to eat their lunch in the basement of the establishment. At this time, too, they were in the habit of playing Texas Jack, Indians, etc. inspired to this no doubt by the perusing of dime novels. One day the proprietor had occasion to visit the hunchman during dinner hour, and unconscious of anything was making his way through a dimly lighted part of the room when he was suddenly seized from behind.

Being a small man he could do nothing with his assailant, who, proding him in the ribs with a wooden bowie knife, hissed in his ear, "I have sworn to avenge the wrong you did me, so die like a dog, and thank your lucky stars you are not killed more!"

Thinking himself in the hands of a madman the proprietor, with a strenuous effort, released himself and turned to flee, when, catching a glimpse of his would be murderer (3), saw it was one of the cash boys, who,
on seeing his terrible mistake, tried to stammer an apology, expecting to be dismissed on the spot. The proprietor, however, only gave him a lecture and advised him to refrain from reading blood curdling literature. There is no more Indian playing in the establishment.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

A Collection of Lamps.

A large and rare collection of lamps in the National museum afford instruction and pleasure. Here, with the stamp of age upon them, are small, flat and oval hand lamps, with wicks at the spout ends, from Leroc, Ephesus, Carpathos, Island of Coos, Pompeii, Rome and ancient Thebes.
With these is a sepulchral lamp about the size and shape of an ordinary clam shell, which shed its dim light in a tomb at Baie, Italy, and more interesting is a bronze model of one that was used by the early Christians in the catacombs of Rome while hiding from their persecutors.
This little lamp weighs about three pounds and is shaped like half a pear, having at the wick end seven points of a star and at the other end an upright cross surmounted by a dove.
Close to these relics of antiquity a Chinese opium smoker's lamp reminds us of the horrors of the opium joint.

The body of this "opium fatuus" is a circular brass drum, six inches high, converging to a dome, into which the wick tube is secured.
Brass filigree work surrounds the top, and surmounting this is a cut glass dome, with a flat apex containing a hole for draft. To this hole the smoker applies the pipe, and with a long drawn breath the smoke is taken into the lungs.—Mechanical News.

An Effeminate Effect.

The insertion of the minute scarf-pins up in one corner of the scarfpin a few years ago was a prettified notion, which was tinged with an effeminate flavor. It was clearly in the nature of a desire to look "femin"—another phrase that belongs alone to the vocabulary of the fair sex.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Sleeping Out.

Fashionable Wife—Did you notice, dear, at the party last evening, how grandly our daughter, Clara, swept into the room?

Husband (with a grunt)—Oh, yes; Clara can sweep into any room grandly enough, but when it comes to sweeping out a room she isn't there.—Texas Sittings

WHERE ARE THEY?

What has become of the rattle-brained
That covered Will Shakespeare's back?
What has become of the old rascals Of Kidd and his pirate pack?

What has become of the rattle-brained

What has become of the cobblers That must have bruised Milton's feet?

Where are the scarfs that Lord Byron wore Where are pop-shells from the wars
What has become of the rattle-brained
Of Queen Elizabeth's rascals?

Where are the slippers of Ferdinand?
Where are Marc Antony's clothes?
Where are the gloves from Antoinette's

The Facial Expression of Horses.

"There is a horse with a benevolent countenance," said a gray-whiskered individual to a reporter at the corner of Clark and Washington streets, as he patted the nose of a cab horse. "Now," he continued, "you in all probability see no difference between this horse and others, except in its color and a spavin or so. There is as much dissimilarity in the facial expression of horses as of human beings."

"Horses cannot talk, and must give vent to their feelings in action and expression. Take, for example, the dray horses of Chicago. As a rule their faces say, almost as plainly as a man could express it in speech: 'We are doomed to a lifetime of toil. It is not our idea of life, but we cannot help ourselves and are resigned to our fate.'"

"The cab horses stand at their post restlessly, with drooping heads and watchful eyes, and their expression is one of relief and eagerness to move when the reins are drawn tight and the order comes to 'git up.' The street car horse has the vacant expression of one who does his work by routine, and whose thoughts are anywhere but in the present."

"Notice that carriage team. The horses are members of the equine Four Hundred, and they know it.
They are as conscious of their sleek coats and shining harness as a dandy of his London-made clothes. See the way they arch their necks. You charge it to the checkreins, but you are wrong; it is their consciousness of superiority which causes them to hold up their heads."—Chicago Globe.

Salt in the Sea.

The sea is not of uniform saltiness at all depths, for the saltiness generally increases with its depth. The investigations of the Challenger show that as a rule the saltiness of the sea decreases from the surface to a depth of from 800 to 1,000 fathoms, and after that increases until the bottom is reached. This cannot be taken as a fixed rule, however, as different seas are subject to different conditions. These variations depend upon the currents of fresh water which are poured into the sea from rivers. Thus the Caspian sea contains eleven pounds of salt to every ton of water and the Red sea ninety-three pounds. In the Mediterranean the saltiness increases with the depth, while in Baffin's bay the surface water and deep water are the same. It has been calculated that if all the salt were extracted from the sea and spread over the surface of the land it would form a layer thirty feet deep.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Old Time Newspaper.

It is the general impression that yesterday's newspaper is not quite so interesting as today's, but this is not altogether true. It is true of course if we are after the news, but there are sometimes other questions to be considered. For instance, there is an old newspaper in the British museum called The English Mercury, published centuries ago, which is far more interesting and valuable than today's London Times, even though there are persons who believe that the museum Mercury is not an original, but a forgery.

The oldest regular newspaper published in England, we are told, was established in 1662 by a certain Thomas Butler. In France the first paper to be started was in the reign of Louis XIII, a period when a newspaper, if it was brave enough to tell the truth and had editors enough to satisfy the executioner, might have accomplished a great deal of good.— Harper's Young People.

Ancient Egyptians Were a White Race.

Professor G. Nicolucci, the famous Neapolitan scientist, claims that the ancient Egyptians were a white race, related closely to the semitic or Jewish tribes and to the Arabs. Physically they formed a type apart, which has been modified by immigration of other races, but is still tolerably distinct, especially among the Fellahs of the country districts.
The Fellah, according to Professor Nicolucci, is the lineal descendant of the builders of the pyramids. The Copts are the same, but with an admixture of negro blood. Para-gallure.

HE LAUGHS BEST WHO LAUGHS LAST.

A Little Bunko Game That Acted Like a Boomerang on Two Drummers.

Two Chicago drummers who spent a short vacation in the rural wilds of "Egypt" attempted a little bunko game, which was partly successful, but furnished a bit of experience that will not soon be forgotten. The two Chicagoans, armed with double barreled fowling pieces, invaded "Egypt" for a few days of quiet shooting. They made their headquarters at a farmhouse and engaged the farmer to act as a guide.
At the end of two days, during which they tramped over a vast expanse of country, waded through swamps and became tired and sore and hungry as the average mortal ever gets without having a shot at anything more gamelike than a chip-munk, they became discouraged and ready to declare all bets off and abandon the field.

Improving an opportunity to consult while the old farmer was temporarily absent, the two disgruntled Nimrods concocted a deep laid plot to bunko the old farmer and have some fun at his expense. A double load of shot was poured into one of the guns and the scheme was ready to be sprung.

As the trio drew near the farmhouse that afternoon one of the Chicagoans suddenly pointed to the farmer's flock of ducks and chickens in the barnyard and remarked: "What'll you take to let me have a shot at those chickens?"

"Wouldn't let you do it at any price," replied the farmer. "They're blooded chickens—best in these parts."

"I'll give you fifty cents for a shot," the farmer shook his head.

"A dollar," the old man laughed. "No, sirree; I wouldn't let you shoot into that flock for a ten dollar bill."

The ambitious sportsman said no more, but laid down his gun and leaving his two companions, walked a few rods to a water trough to wash his hands. The second villain in the play now entered upon the scene.
"Say, old man," quietly remarked the other Chicagoan, "here's a chance to have some fun with Billy.
While he isn't looking take the ramrod from his gun and draw the load of shot, leaving nothing but powder, then tell him he may have a shot for a dollar. Pocket the money and see him bang away with a blank charge."

The granger fell into the trap instantly. It was only the work of a moment to draw the load of shot from each barrel—one load from each—but the unsuspecting farmer of course still left a charge of shot below those he extracted.

Villain No. 1 came slowly sauntering back. "What did you say you'd give for a shot at them fowls?" inquired the farmer with an innocent air.

"A dollar,"

"Well, go ahead. Give me a dollar and try your luck."

The money was paid over, and the supposed victim of a practical joke raised his gun and fired. Instantly that barnyard was filled with feathers and fluttering ducks, geese and chickens. A dozen fowls were kicking and plunging about in their expiring throes.

The farmer was rooted to the spot for a moment. Then he slowly walked into the house without saying a word. The two plotters gathered up the fruits of their scheming, and dividing the slaughtered fowls between them, started to walk to the nearest railway station, where they intended to pass the night and enjoy a feast. They very indolently stopped before the farmhouse long enough to have a hearty laugh over the old granger's discomfiture. Suddenly the farmer threw open the door, and stepping out upon the porch cried out, "If a dollar a shot is the ruling price for shootin' round here, reckon I'll take a shot myself."

Thereupon he threw a silver dollar after the retreating drummers and immediately followed it with a load of bird shot. Both the jokers were peppered, and hastily dropping their body they ran down the road howling like hyenas. A doctor at the station made good wages during the next three days picking bird shot out of their anatomies.—Chicago Mail.

SONOMA, NOVEMBER 5, 1892.

MR. CADY

Is He a De Young Railroad Man?

A Vigorous Assertion that He is Not--But He Has Not Taken the Traffic Association Pledge.

It has been asserted by Mr. Cady's supporters that those opposing his election are a few spiteful Republicans in Sonoma Township. We deny this. Spite has nothing whatever to do with it. Mr. Cady is not the proper man to send to the Legislature, and that is why the members of his own party--Republicans--will not support him.

The San Francisco Bulletin, one of the oldest and most reliable Republican newspapers in the State, is also opposed to Mr. Cady, and in its issue of last Monday has this to say about him:

"Several friends of M. K. Cady, candidate for the Assembly in the Seventeenth District, complain that he has been unjustly designated as a railroad man. The Bulletin some days ago, on the authority of a reputable citizen of the Seventeenth District (Sonoma county) stated that a well-known railroad attorney had expended money in Mr. Cady's interest, that he was a chum of Senator Ragsdale, and had not made a satisfactory record as a Supervisor, which office he now holds.

On behalf of Mr. Cady it is stated by the Santa Rosa Republican that he pays his fare whenever he rides on the Southern Pacific Road and has never been known to be connected in any way with the corporation. His record as a Supervisor is pronounced by the same authority to have been excellent. The editor of the Republican is A. B. Lemmon, a member of the Republican State Executive Committee. On July 14th last Mr. Lemmon voted with Wendell Easton and others to recognize the local Republican wing of the local Republican party, thus practically destroying the organization in this city. In fact Mr. Lemmon made the motion by which that was accomplished. He cannot, therefore, be said to be very good authority on railroad subjects. The Kelly-Crimmins machine in this city is not only the De Young machine. It is the acknowledged political instrument of the Southern Pacific Company.

Mr. Cady is also said by a prominent citizen of Santa Rosa to be opposed to De Young's Senatorial aspirations. This appears to be based on the fact alone that he has privately said so. He has not made any public utterance of the fact.

The truth is that Mr. Cady is and was an intimate friend of Senator Ragsdale. In the last Legislature Senator Ragsdale voted against the bill to make the Southern Pacific Company pay its taxes, and he was sued by the late George W. Faylor as a member of the celebrated Senatorial combine of twenty-four, for which Faylor claimed to have acted as agent. Faylor wrote in Judge Wallace's court that each member of this combine received $1,000 from the Southern Pacific Company, through Dick Chute, the railroad lobbyist.

The Traffic Association has sent Mr. Cady a letter asking him to define his position on the railroad question. He has not even returned an evasive answer. He has returned no answer at all. If he entertains any opinions on the subject he has not taken the trouble to express them, and the public has a right to class him with the servants of the corporation.

Mr. Cady may be a good man, but his political affiliations and his own acts suggest that the people of his district will be foolish to trust him with their interests at Sacramento without some distinct utterances that he is in accord with them on the burning issues of the hour--De Young and the railroad question.

TREASURER STOFEN'S APPEAL.

To the Voters of Sonoma County. GENTLEMEN: Owing to the necessity of attending to my official duties, and the misfortune of suffering a serious sickness during two weeks of this campaign, I have been prevented from seeing as many of you as I desired to see, and therefore I take this method of addressing you.

More than any other candidate now before the people of this county I am being made the object of bitter, malignant, underhanded opposition. Why is this? Mine is not, properly speaking, a political office. The treasurer has nothing to do with politics, in his official capacity. It is his duty to receive the public money, honestly take care of it, settle with the state treasurer for the state's portion, and pay out the balance on warrants or orders drawn by the proper officers, to men of all parties alike.

But the principal argument used against me by those who are opposing me is that I have held the office for two terms. It should be remembered that I have before this been a candidate three times. That the first time there was no hope of election and that I had all the expense and lost all the time of a campaign and derived nothing in return. So that I made three campaigns in order to hold the office four years. The bonds are heavy. The responsibility is great. I have saved but little beyond the expense of those three campaigns and my expense of living and supporting my family.

It is admitted by everybody--even by those who for their own reasons are opposing me--that I have been an efficient and capable officer. I have done my duty perfectly. I have treated all alike who have had business with my office. I have been obliging and polite to all; I have made no distinction on account of politics. Not a dollar or a dime of the public money has been used or misapplied.

Does a banker, a merchant, a railroad company, a farmer, a mechanic, a teamster, or a good business man in any line of business, make it an argument against an employee that he has been capable and faithful for many years, because some one else wishes to take his place? On the contrary, they try to keep a tried and faithful servant by promoting him or raising his wages.

In the eastern states it has been often the case that they have kept the same person in such offices as this as long as they could--often for lifetime, and have thought they were doing well. In many of the best managed counties of this state the same rule has been observed, and with profit. The treasurer of Mariposa county is now serving his sixteenth term. The treasurer of Humboldt his fifth term. A treasurer in one of the southern counties was retained in office over twenty years and died while holding it. The treasurer of El Dorado has held several terms, is a candidate for re-election, and the people hope he may live to fill it for a long, long period.

I believe that such non-political offices should be considered from a business point of view, and I hope that the voters of this county will consider my candidacy in that light. I have been scrupulously honest; faithfully attentive to my duties; polite and obliging to all, and I hope my fellow-citizens will judge me according to my merits as they have known me and tried me, and that you will find it in your hearts to re-elect me on the 8th of November. And I shall be ever and truly grateful.

P. N. STOFEN.

Take! Take! Take! Simmons Liver Regulator for dyspepsia, constipation and heartburn.

It is one of the peculiar customs of the people of Mashonaland that when twin babies are born they are immediately drowned.

On the way to Paradise.

Let us hope that the people who habitually disregard their health will reach that desirable place, and avoid the locality which is less desirable as an eternal residence on account of the heat and surroundings generally. But while we tarry in this vale of tears, why should we voluntarily endure the tortures of dyspepsia, Bitters will rid us of the attacks of malarial which--unless physicians are very much at fault--tends to shorten the term of our existence. Heartburn, biliousness, constipation, and most always accompany this complaint, and are all exasperated by the Bitters, which also conquers completely malarial, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. Since the appearance of "The People's Friend" it has shown a singular capacity to cure this formidable complaint that has carried off so many of our brightest and best.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light House.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trevelyan are keepers of the Gov. Light House at Sand Bay, Mich. And are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last spring she was laid up with measles, followed by a dreadful cough and running in a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain. She grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "bundle of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery. After the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free from J. C. Watson's Druggists.

FATAL FIRE.

Two Men Burned to Death in the Lock-up.

Lyon's Blacksmith Shop, City Recorder's Office and the Lock-up Destroyed.

The fire bell of the Sonoma Volunteer Firemen aroused the people of Sonoma from their slumbers at five o'clock last Thursday morning.

People upon rushing out into the street discovered that the city's lock-up and Lyon's blacksmith shop adjoining were in a mass of flames.

The fire department was promptly upon the ground and soon a well directed stream of water was playing upon the burning buildings, to which the fire was confined.

The residence of Miss Martha Wooster, adjoining Lyon's blacksmith shop, had a narrow escape as the south side of the building was on fire several times.

People upon arriving on the scene were informed that two men—tramps—were in the lock-up and an effort was made to liberate them, but without success, and the charred remains of the men were found by the firemen after the fire had been put out.

Peter Keil and Henry Bates were the first two men on the ground and made an attempt to enter the building to rescue the men, but were driven back by the fire and smoke. They had evidently been suffocated to death before the arrival of Keil and Bates as the poor fellows made no outcry.

The men had been arrested the day before and confined in the lock-up charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

One was an Englishman and the other an Irishman. Both were between 25 and 35 years of age and of medium size and build. They made their appearance in town the day before their death and nothing is known as to their identity. They belonged to the army of tramps that have made this valley their headquarters since the grape picking season opened.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have been set on fire accidentally by the unfortunate men while smoking their pipes.

R. B. Lyon lost everything in his shop, nothing was saved. His loss is said to be about $800. No insurance.

The recorder's office building and lock-up belonged to the city. The buildings were made of brick and were not worth much, the principal loss being the destruction of many of Judge Cheney's legal papers.

City Trustees Meeting.

The City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Wednesday evening. Trustees Weyl, Litzius, Seipp and Trudgen were present.

Trustee Seipp reported that the property owners on Broadway wanted a curb constructed on the east side of that thoroughfare from Lyon's corner south to the city line.

No action was taken in the matter.

Trustee Trudgen moved that the Street Committee advertise for bids for the construction of a culvert for Duhring's corner to the Post-office and as far down First-street as the small creek which crosses East to that thoroughfare. So ordered.

On motion of Trustee Seipp $50 was appropriated for graveling Napa street east of the bridge near Bulotti's residence.

The Street Committee was instructed to inquire into the cost of a gutter to be constructed of basalt blocks and to be built on the south side of Napa street from Grothaus' corner to Broadway.

On motion of Trustee Litzius the bridge near the Union Hotel was ordered repaired.

When the proposition to light the town with gas came up for discussion, Trustee Litzius moved that ordinance No. 43 in regard to the same be adopted. The motion, however, failed of a second, and no action was taken.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

Frank La Vine Has a Narrow Escape.

On Tuesday night last a daring attempt at assassination was made right in the heart of the town.

About ten o'clock on the night in question people living in the vicinity of the south side of the Plaza were startled by a series of pistol shots which rang out clear and sharp on the still night air.

Two of the shots were fired almost directly in front of the Bank Exchange saloon, in which several men were sitting at the time. One of the number, Frank La Vine, stepped out on the sidewalk to see what caused the shooting, when he was confronted by a strange man dressed in the garb of a grape-picker, who savagely asked him what he wanted.

Before La Vine could reply the man whipped out a grape-picker's knife and made a vicious lunge at his heart. The intended victim was too quick for the would-be assassin, however, and La Vine sprang back just in time to prevent the keen bladed weapon from penetrating his body.

The knife barely grazed the skin directly over the heart and cut a long strip in Mr. La Vine's vest. The cowardly assailant, immediately after making the knife thrust took to his heels and disappeared in the darkness, firing off his pistol as he ran. The would-be assassin is unknown, but whoever the man is he is a dangerous character to be at large.

AN AMPHIBIOUS BURGLAR.

He Takes to the Waters of Sonoma Creek in an Attempt to Escape.

Constable Barnhardt had a lively time with E. J. Geiger, a burglar, Friday. He found Geiger at the Clayton place and placed him under arrest. As Geiger said he would make no trouble the officer did not handcuff him. They got into the buggy and started for Santa Rosa.

All went merrily until the bridge over the Sonoma creek at Glen Ellen was reached. When in the middle of the structure with a mighty leap Geiger cleared the buggy and the side of the bridge and disappeared below.

The movement frightened the officer's horse which started off at a Stamboul gait. By the time Barnhardt got his horse under control, Geiger had put many rods between them.

Finally the officer saw him and putting whip to his steed succeeded in getting close to him again. Then Geiger darted into a clump of bushes near the creek and disappeared. Barnhardt left his rig and took up the chase on foot. He examined the bushes but could find no trace of Mr. Geiger.

He was about to leave when a gurgling sound attracted his attention. He looked at the deep pool of water and discovered the Roman nose of his man gleaming in the murky waters. He had "ducked" and remained in that position for some time. Barnhardt induced him to get out of the wet, handcuffed him, tied him to the buggy, brought him here and landed him in jail.—Republican.

Wild Horses in British Columbia. In an area about fifteen miles square below Trout creek, in British Columbia, is a band of at least 700 wild horses. They are not only eating off the stock ranges, but are becoming a more direct source of loss to stock owners, for they entice away good horses, especially the colts. The government has several times been petitioned either to exterminate the band or give the settlers permission to do it, but thus far no action has been taken. Though these wild horses are worthless little animals, the authorities are afraid that the killing them will give offense to the Indians, who claim some of them, but who nevertheless shoot without hesitation when any of the horses interferes with their tame animals.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Has He a Spite Against Sonoma?

MR. EDITOR:

As editors are generally exchanging with other papers they are, or are supposed to be, better posted of what is going on in the county, than other people. For this reason I seek some information from you on a matter that is of some interest to the residents of Sonoma.

Some time ago Judge Breitenbach circulated a petition to the Board of Supervisors of this county praying that the name of M. L. Charles be placed on the list of indigents and he be allowed a stipend from the county, as he is very old and not able any more to make his living by doing carpenter's work.

The petition was signed by at least forty residents of Sonoma, and a great many more would have signed the same if they had been given an opportunity to do so. Indeed, I do not think that there is a man, woman or child in Sonoma who would not be glad to see the old gentleman receive a little help in his declining years. He is so quiet, unobtrusive and gentle. Mr. Editor, what has become of the petition? Mr. Charles has not received anything yet!

There cannot be the least doubt that Judge Breitenbach, who has drawn and circulated the petition, has sent it to Santa Rosa to the County Clerk, and Mr. Juillard could not have had an object in suppressing the same. There is but one other supposition of its failure, and that is, that the Board of Supervisors has rejected it.

Who is to blame for it? Such matters are generally referred for decision to the Supervisor of the district from which the petition comes. In this case it is Mr. Cady, who must have rejected the petition.

Did Mr. Cady intend to punish Judge Breitenbach as the author of it, or did he want to include all the signers out of spite against Sonoma, because he and Mr. Maxwell have so far failed to run old Sonoma? May not the electors of this precinct return the compliment and punish Mr. Cady on election day? Pray inform your readers and oblige.

SIMS VS. CADY.

In the Fair Contest the Gold Medal Goes to the Best Man.

In the voting contest at the Catholic Fair, which closed last Monday night, J. C. Sims, candidate for the Assembly carried off the beautiful and costly gold medal as being the most popular candidate running for office in this county.

At the outset the contest narrowed down to J. C. Sims and M. K. Cady, with the result that Mr. Sims, when the voting contest came to an end last Monday night, had a majority of 99 over Mr. Cady.

When the result was announced the audience went wild with enthusiasm over the fact that the medal was to be worthily bestowed. Ladies waived their handkerchiefs, the men shouted and yelled and the small boys let forth a series of shrill whistles that was "just too dreadful for anything," as an old lady was heard to remark while the commotion was going on.

The Catholic Fair.

The Catholic Fair, which closed last Monday evening after being held for six days and nights, was a social and financial success. The various booths were tastefully trimmed and decorated in bright and pretty colors. The ladies were untiring in their efforts to make the Fair a success. Each evening a musical programme was presented, which was followed by dancing, much to the delight of the young folks. One of the attractive features was the wheel of fortune, presided over by Jos. Schaw, who filled the position in a business-like manner. The principal prizes were won by the following numbers: Buggy horse, won by No. 51; cow, won by No. 123; dinner set, won by No. 107; $20 gold coin, won by No. 108; barrel of wine, won by No. 111; three cords of wood, won by No. 20. Part of the proceeds of this fair will be used towards paying for the handsome new bell, which has already arrived and will be placed in position in a few days. This bell will be one of the finest every part of the valley. It will have an electric clock and fire alarm attachment and will be a great convenience to the residents of Sonoma.
